Hospital Adds 100-Bed Floor

A 100-bed, million dollar addition is now being constructed at the new Charles P. Kettering Memorial Hospital in Kettering, Ohio. The new addition is the result of an unexpected gift from two sources the family of O. Lee Harrison, late General Motors Corporation executive, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kettering.

Distinctively designed as a fifth floor pavillion, the addition is given in memory of Mr. Harrison by his widow and two daughters, a half - million dollars is being given by the Harrison family and the remainder in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kettering, according to a news story in the Dayton Journal — Herald. It is "the largest undertaking of its kind in the history of Dayton".

According to George Nelson, administrator the decision to add 100 beds is in keeping with community anxiety about the serious shortage of hospital beds for the Dayton area. This is the second time the hospital has been expanded because of community need. It started as a 100-bed memorial, then was expanded to 300 beds when Eugene Kettering offered to add 100 beds if the community would add 100.

"The top floor pavilion will bring the hospital to its maximum capacity with approximately 400 beds, this includes 300 beds for medical and surgical patients, 34 pediatric beds, and 28 beds in maternity, plus 36 bassinets." Mr. Wilson said. He set spring or summer of 1964 as a target date for completion of the addition.

The official opening of the hospital is expected some time in February. Detailed planning for the official dedication, open house and opening are now being made by the hospital staff and the Board of Trustees.

In commenting on the new addition, an editorial in the Dayton Journal-Herald said, "O. Lee Harrison a General Motor executive who was a close friend of Charles F. Kettering, could not have wished for a more fitting or more enduring Memorial than the one planned by Mrs. Harrison and her daughters.

Mrs. Harrison has paid a thoughtful tribute to her late husband. The Greater Dayton community is grateful for her generousity and for her sensitiveness to the needs of others."

The new Charles F. Kettering Memorial Hospital is being constructed by the community of Dayton and the Kettering Foundation. It will be owned and operated by the Columbia Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

something about "you can shoot a quail in the tail, but you can't get a man with a gun" on to the flourish about "my uncle down in Texas can't even sign his name. he signs his checks with 'x's' but they cash them just the same" and such . . and then the obligato duet when Ethel and the male lead come down front stage and set the audience (that's me all right) delirious with "You're Not Sick, You're Just in Love." Me, O My, "South Pacific" and Mary Martin "Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair" all right, but there's only one Ethel Merman. I would have been raving yet, but chanced to glance at Dr. Doughty, and is fast asleep . . . or so I thought." I stopped and shook him and he opened his eyes and says, "Don't tell me they have made a song about Annie." And then he all whispers . . . "I danced with the original Annie Oakley." Oh, no! Yes . . . "She was the house guest of my friends, Admiral and Mrs. Beardsley" . . . and . . . now they have made a song about Annie" . . . and there was that "far away" look in his eyes . . . and thinking back about it, I too have that memory of the Mormon and also of the friend who danced with the original Annie Oakley — the gal who was the all time champion lady with a gun. Dr. Doughty arose and from his collection of wonderful relics showed me a pen . . . given him by Mrs. Beardsley . . . it was his pen used to write the first news from the Admiral, telling of the discovery of gold in Alaska.

Would that I had "the pen" of a Walt Whitman or a Sherwood Anderson or a Robert Frost, in order that I might with adequate skill tell these true stories of Our America.

Living in the past? Shucks this is today and this is tomorrow. Why send a MAN to the Moon? They have a Man in the Moon . . . send Ethel Merman . . . and she could sing back to the Earth news that all is well and that it is "Friendship".

County Agent Recommends "Your Family Survival Plan"

Easy as A.B.C. That's the new bulletin "Your Family Survival Plan" now available from the County Extension Service Office in Appomattox.

The A.B.C.' of survival are outlined in this attractive fill-in the blank type publication which county agent Jim Smith recommends for every home.

Designed as a ready reminder of home preparedness progress, the single-sheet bulletin tells its owner at a glance what steps have been taken and what still needs to be done to bring the family up to readiness for a natural or nuclear emergency.

One side of this simple, personalized survival plan gives the householder recommendations on the amount of food and water to store. It lists certain types of foods as best for long periods of storage. By entering on the plan the type and amount of food set aside for emergencies, a person always knows his family's preparedness status. By recording storage dates he can replace foods periodically to avoid spoilage and waste.

Special food and medical needs of babies, the aged and others are also considered in the plan. Entries are allotted for bedding, clothing, sanitation and cooking equipment. The family has spaces to record what it has on hand and what needs to be acquired. The plan also shows which items will be stored in the shelter or emergency area and which will be gathered when the emergency occurs.

Family immunization records can be entered, along with first aid and other survival courses completed.

The reverse side of the plan gives recommendations for shelter construction or for improving present home structures. The householder can compare his present facilities with shelter protection standards of common building materials and decide what he has to do to improve his chances of survival.

Smith suggests that you write, phone or visit the County office of the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service today for a free copy of "Your Family Survival Plan."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Paris, of Pront Royal, were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Dottridge Martin.
